People IN THE NEWS

One of the two Washington Post reporters who broke the Watergate story thinks it's time people stop dwelling on the subject. "I think anybody who's clamoring for more is sort of clamoring for more blood," Bob Woodward said at Yale's Trumbull College. "I think we know what happened in Watergate and I think it would be a healthy thing for the country to get to other matters that loom very, very large." The former partner of Carl Bernstein suggested that one matter worth further investigation is who killed John F. Kennedy—although he said he believes the Warren Commission "reached the right conclusions."
